

Wireless Internet Service Providers (WISPS) would benefit greatly in their efforts to provide broadband service to users in both a rural and urban areas should they be given unlicensed access to the 3.6GHz band. Present unlicensed spectrum has become over used and, in many cases, become unuseable for WISP services.